This paper aims to tabulate the manuscripts of works of Shāh Walī Allāh al-Dihlawī's¹ works (1703–1762). Born a Muslim in Delhi, India, he grew up to be an Islamic scholar. He made a pilgrimage to Mecca and studied in Medina. Shāh Walī Allāh authored a range of literary works. He advocated a realization of society and one's life that accords with the stipulation of the Quran and Hadith. His thoughts still find resonance in many Muslims today, especially in South Asia, and his works have been translated from Arabic and Persian and published in Urdu. Considering the immense historical significance of Shāh Walī Allāh, the paper will compile a list of manuscripts of his works in Arabic and Persian.

Scholars such as Carl Brockelmann (1937–1949) and M. I. Chaghatai (2005) have previously attempted to assemble a list of his works. Although, nowadays, all libraries have consolidated catalogues of the works kept in them, it is difficult to search for all existing manuscripts. However, ascertaining which of Shāh Walī Allāh's works are housed at which library enables us to analyze which aspect of his thought has been accepted in which region, and to what degree. As the first step, the paper attempts to enlist relevant manuscripts in India, Shāh Walī Allāh's home country, looking far beyond his native village near Delhi.

Seven libraries in five cities will be examined: the Aligarh Muslim University (AMU) in Aligarh, Khuda Bakhsh Oriental Public Library (KBL) in Patna, Andhra Pradesh State Government Oriental Manuscripts Library (OML) in Hyderabad, Osmania University Library (OUL) in Hyderabad, Salar Jung Museum Library (SJML) in Hyderabad, Nadwa al-'Ulamā' Library (NUL) in Lucknow, and Rampur Raza Library (RRL) in Rampur. The author of this paper visited all seven libraries above and referred to their catalogues.² Although it was impossible to cross-check the existence of each manuscript and match the title with the library catalogue, the information gathered is as follows: 54 manuscripts of 32 works in AMU; 26 manuscripts of 17 works in KBL; 30 manuscripts of 23 works in OML; 14 manuscripts of 12 works in OUL; 5 manuscripts of 5 works in SJML; 73 manuscripts of 39 works in NUL; and 39 manuscripts of 19 works in RRL—in all, and 241 manuscripts of 67 works.³ This evidence sufficiently reflects the general trend.

For example, the list shows that al-Taḥḥīmāt al-Ilāhīya, Risāla fī Waḥda al-Wujūd, al-Qawl al-Jamīl, ‘Iqd al-Jīd fī Aḥkām al-Ijtihād wa al-Taqlīd, al-Inṣāf fī Bayān Sabab al-Ikhtilāf, and Surūr al-Maḥzūn are the most popular works because five out of seven libraries possess copies of them. The first three works deal with Islamic mysticism, the fourth and fifth discuss Islamic Law, and the last is a biography of the prophet Muhammad. However, only three out of seven libraries have Ḥujja Allāh al-Bāligha, known as Shāh Walī Allāh’s masterpiece. Once perfected, the method of inventory survey will produce promising results in the future.
